DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

Claim 7 is objected to because of the following informalities:

In claim 7 line 11, "the same size" lacks antecedent basis. Additionally, it appears that the term "the same size" is not accurate description of the present invention, since "size" encompasses a series of dimensions and the present invention appears to include only one dimension, i.e. diameter or width.

In line 13, "the" should be inserted prior to "solder material".

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 7-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yeh (US 2003/0216067).

Yeh discloses an electrical connector comprising: a) an insulative housing (10) having: i) a plurality of terminal slots (13); and ii) plurality of standoffs (16), each of the plurality of standoffs protruding inwardly from an interior surface of one of the plurality of terminal slots and having an overflow hole (between 16) therein; b) a plurality of terminals (3), each of the plurality of terminals having a through hole (321) aligning and communicating with the overflow hole, one of the plurality of terminals being inserted into each of the plurality of terminal slots; and c) solder material (¶0023, line 7) located in each overflow hole and through hole, wherein, during a soldering procedure, solder material automatically flows from outside the insulative housing into each of the plurality of terminal slots and into each overflow hole and through hole.

Yeh discloses substantially the claimed invention except for the through hole and the overflow hole being the same size. It would have been an obvious matter of design preference to one of ordinary skill in the art to design/form the through hole and the overflow hole being the same size. Absent any convincing showing of the criticality of the design, this particular design is nothing more than the inventor's choice without thereby departing from the scope of the invention. In re Dailey, 149 USPQ 47 (CCPA 1976).

Regarding claim 8, Yeh discloses each through hole of the plurality of terminals being located below the overflow hole of the corresponding one of the plurality of standoffs.

Regarding claim 9, Yeh discloses the solder material extends from an interior of the insulative housing to an exterior of the insulative housing (¶0023, line 7).

Regarding claims 10 and 11, Yeh discloses the terminals including bent soldering parts (32), and the through holes being correspondingly formed on each of the soldering parts.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 7 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
